Comment:	After just looking at the newer plans for the ENTRADA project at the corner of McDowell and 66th, I feel the need to express my total disgust. The rendering of the office building on the corner, is really unattractive! In the pages located deep in the proposal, the buildings....(4 floors high) are described as being shades of gray. Do we really need to look like a post-war prison facility, or a giant mausoleum without the benefit of trailing ivy covering the walls? Seriously, is this ugliness the "Entrada" to what used to be a charming, southwestern cowboy town? Admittedly, that is no longer the standard for improvement here, but did development require overbuilding of short-term rentals? When did Scottsdale lose the idea of commitment to it's residents, in favor of outside (not living in the community) investors? I am very sorry to have chosen to buy a home here, 9 years ago!
