Re: July 13 Study Session Discussion on the Silverstone at Pinnacle Peak
Master Environmental Design Concept Plan

The master developer for the Silverstone at Pinnacle Peak project on the former Rawhide property has submitted the Master Environmental Design Concept Plan as required by the zoning stipulations. This project covers approximately 160 acres at the southeast corner of Pinnacle Peak and Scottsdale Roads. The land use plan as approved includes a major senior living facility, townhouse and patio home residential areas, a commercial site, an office site and a public use site. In addition, substantial open spaces will be provided along the Rawhide Wash, the scenic corridor along Scottsdale Road and along an internal private park.

The plan includes two major sections: Landscape Design and Architectural Themes, Building Heights, Signs and Lighting. Within each section there are plans, graphics, descriptions and lists.

In the Landscape Design section, the overall concept is based upon a transition from an organic and more natural setting on the perimeter to a more structured and luxuriant character in the center. These transitions are reflected in the types of materials as well as how they will be used. In addition, key locations such as major entrances and a turnaround at the center of the development will have enhanced character.

In the Architectural Themes, Building Heights, Signs and Lighting section the discussion establishes the basic design intent of fitting within the context of the existing development in the area on color and materials but allowing a range of design options so that there is variety and substance to the character of the buildings on the site. This project has been stipulated to follow the design standards of the Environmentally Sensitive Lands Ordinance (ESLO). The applicant will be seeking some relief in the interpretation and application on the Light Reflective Value (LRV) standards as established in the ESLO. The applicant seeks the ability to provide more variety in color tones that will better fit the architectural character being sought. Local context will be maintained.

The purpose of this discussion is to seek the Board's insights, goals and expectations for this major and important project. The Board will review this proposal formally in September 2006. At that time planning staff expects to have a good understanding about the design character and intent of the two largest components of this development.
